COMPLAINT:
idler pulley squeal.

CAUSE:
misalignment.

CORRECTION:
I started by locating where the squeal was coming from using a heat gun I discovered that the main drive idler pulley was hotter than all the other pulleys. so i started to inspect the pulley and i discovered that the belt was rubbing on the inside of the pulley i then loosened off belt tension and removed the pulley once the pulley was removed i put spacers behind the pulley. after the spacers were in reassembled the pulley and tightened belt tension back and ran the machine i discovered while the spacers did help the squeal was still present so i took the pulley back apart and analyzed the bracket and I discovered the bracket had been wore out and was now to big for the bolt that holds on the pulley. once i had the new bracket i put it and the pulley back on and had to play with the adjustments of the pulley until the squeal went away.

INT - A/C COMPRESSOR REPLACEMENT

COMPLAINT:

ac compressor making grinding noise.

CAUSE:

not functioning properly.

CORRECTION:

I started by locating the high and low pressure service ports on the machine once I located the ports I hooked up the reclaimer machine to the ac system. Once the reclaimer was hooked up I screwed in the service valves in order to access the system. After I began to run the reclaim cycle. i waited for the system to be reclaimed once the reclaim was done and a vacuum had been pulled I began to remove the lines running to the ac compressor then I loosened the compressor so that the belt could be removed. once the belt was removed i was able to take the compressor free. after i removed the compressor I located the dryer for the ac system I then began to remove the two lines that run into the dryer. once the dryer was free from the lines I loosened the clamp that holds the dryer on. Once the old dryer was removed I installed the new one in the clamp and tightened it back up. after I reinstalled the lines to the dryer. Next i moved on to installing the new compressor I started by sitting the new compressor in the brackets so that i could line up the bolts. once I had the bolts installed i put the belt on and ran the tensioner bolt in until the belt was tight. after I began to reinstall the lines too the compressor. once the lines were installed I hooked the reclaimer machine back up to the system then I pulled the system into a vacuum right after the vacuum i
